Teach Children to Save Day April 24, 2025

What can you do at home to help teach your kids about money?

- Talk openly about money with and around your kids. When you talk to your kids about money, it removes the mystery and helps them make smart choices.
- Give them fake money. Fake money is a great way to teach young kids about the value of money without actually entrusting them with any hard-earned cash. Think of it as training wheels for budding consumers.
- If you haven't done so already, open a savings account or a CD for your child that will earn interest. Watch their money grow will get them excited about saving and encourage them to keep their money in the account instead of spending it.
